RE: BAGLY v. U.S. Dep't of Health and Human Services, et al., No. 1:20-cv-11297
Your Honor:

This letter provides an update to the February 4, 2021 filing of the Assistant Dean for Clinical & Pro Bono Programs. Our understanding is that the Court requested this update during its last motion hearing on October 18, 2021. We further understand that this matter was stayed on October 19, 2021 for some duration of time.

The Office of Clinical Programs has overall administrative responsibility for student enrollment in clinical offerings at Harvard Law School. In the current academic year, Harvard Law School offers more than 35 in-house and externship clinics designed to provide students hands-on legal experience under the supervision of licensed attorneys across a broad swath of legal fields. Attorneys from the Center for Health Law & Policy Innovation of Harvard Law School are involved as counsel for plaintiffs in this matter. It is possible that students enrolled in the Center's clinical program may work with the BAGLY counsel team as one of ten possible projects currently ongoing within that clinic.

The Office of Clinical Programs has reviewed the student enrollment roster of the Spring 2022 Harvard Law School seminar taught by Judge Saris entitled "Facts and Lies." No clinical student who is or has been directly involved with the BAGLY matter as a clinical student was enrolled in the seminar. With respect to the Center for Health Law & Policy Innovation, there was one student enrolled in the seminar who was previously working in the Center's clinic. That student did not have any past involvement with the BAGLY case, nor did that student have any concurrent involvement in the case during their Spring 2022 seminar enrollment. During their time in the clinic, they were involved in one of the nine other clinical projects offered within the Center for Health Law & Policy Innovation.

Please do not hesitate to reach out to the Office of Clinical Programs if we can offer any further information.

Best Regards,

Meredith Boak

Assistant Dean for Clinical and Experiential
Education and Pro Bono Programs
